William Forbes, a young man who operates the grindstones at the Marr & Gordon upper plant and dispenses tools to the granite cutters in that shed, met with a very painful accident early yesterday afternoon. Three fingers on the left hand were badly mutilated when the member was caught in one of the large grindstones. Two of the fingers were fractured, but fortunately it was not necessary to amputate. The bar devoted to the purpose of smoothing the rough edges slipped from his position, allowing Forbes' left hand to fall heavily onto the stone. The stone was spinning its course at a great many revolutions per minute.

Abutters around Depot square have started an agitation in favor of better lighting facilities on the square. Property owners in that locality have long contended that the square is poorly lighted at night and that conditions now existing are a constant menace to pedestrians. Last night an elderly woman who was making her way in the darkness to the mail box at the Central Vermont station tripped as she crossed the tracks and fell. Fortunately she escaped with nothing more serious than skin abrasion on a lower limb, but the narrow escape from grave consequences has renewed the emphasis of the protest against conditions there. For brief periods on Saturday and Monday nights, a light maintained by the Gas Co. lights up an otherwise darkened section of the square, but its interval of use is of short duration at best and the abutters hope to persuade the city council that a permanent light is needed there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Griggs were pleasantly surprised last evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lamb on Summer street by about 50 of their friends and relatives of Barre and Montpelier, who called to remind them that it was the 40th anniversary of their wedding. Although it came as a complete surprise to them, they were fully equal to the occasion and gave their friends a hearty welcome. After a few selections on the victrola, Dr. Barnett, in a happy little speech, presented the bride and groom a handsome mahogany rocker and numerous other gifts, as tokens of remembrance, after which Mr. Griggs, on behalf of himself and wife, heartily thanked the friends for their kind thoughtfulness. A few more selections were rendered on the victrola, then dainty refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and at a late hour the friends dispersed, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Griggs many more happy anniversaries.
